Room 142
Miriam Knoll
Campus Community Center

It seems incredible now, but less than fifty years ago, a white person and a person of color could not marry in many parts of the United States. Will people fifty years from now look back on the prohibition of same-sex marriages with similar incredulity? Should we allow any two people who genuinely love each other to marry? What about minors or blood relatives?

Explore the themes raised in this documentary film, released in 2011. Join us for this public program, facilitated by Brian Domino, Associate Professor, Department of Philosophy, Miami University and hosted by the Gardner-Harvey Library, Miami Middletown.

The film is free and open to all. Light refreshments will be provided.

This presentation is made possible through the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) and The Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History award of a Created Equal grant to Gardner-Harvey Library.
